

Online 1099G Tax Forms for 2018 Now Available From Connecticut Department of Labor Website

WETHERSFIELD, February 28, 2019 – With the April tax deadline fast approaching, State Labor Commissioner Kurt Westby reminds everyone that Statement of Unemployment Compensation Payments forms for tax year 2018 can be accessed online by visiting the agency’s website. Commonly referred to as the 1099G, the document contains tax information required for claimants who have received unemployment benefits and need to report them as income on their annual tax filing. Statements can be downloaded by visiting www.Filectui.com and clicking on the light blue UC-1099G tax form button located toward the top of the page.

Annual tax statements are no longer mailed out, Westby notes. “The paperless method has allowed us to provide statements more quickly, cut costs, and increase efficiency. In addition to incurring printing and mailing costs, the agency was finding that a large number of 1099G statements were being returned to us due to claimant address changes.”

The online system offers 24/7 access and five years of the tax records – currently from 2014 to 2018. Individuals clicking on the UC-1099G button will find links to Frequently Asked Questions, and a log-in page to access the tax statements(s). Claimants who used the agency’s online system to file a weekly unemployment insurance claim, make an account inquiry, or request their method of benefit payment (direct deposit or debit card) are required to use that same User ID and password. New users or those who have forgotten their ID or password will need to click on the Create an Account/Forgot User ID or Password link.

The agency can mail a copy of the form, by request, to claimants requesting one through the online 1099G Request service. Once processed, a paper copy will arrive in the mail within 10 business days.
